Літургія Слова (літургія оглашених)

Слухання Божого Слова, відповідь на нього, молитва

Слово Боже засвічує в наших серцях «нетлінне світло богопізнання», про що навчас молитва перед читанням Євангелія. Сенс слухання Слова Божого – у «розумінні євангельських проповідувань», аби прийняти їх як «блаженні заповіді» та, «перемігши всі тілесні похоті, провадити духовне життя, думаючи й діючи так, як угоднo Богові». Виявом шанобливого слухання і приймання Божого Слова є схилення голови під час читання Євангелія. У проповіді священник звіщає Благу Вість про великі Божі діла, закликає людей до втілення почутого Слова, «навчас і закликає уводити в життя ці добрі приклади.» Вірні слухають Слово Боже, яке Господь промовляє до них через читання апостола й Євангелія та через проповідь. Вони приймають Слово Боже до своїх сердець, немов зерно, яке має принести добрий плід у їхньому житті. Причащаючись же Христа-Слова, вірні стають Його носіями і благовісниками.

У Сугубій ектенії (ектенії усильного благання) церква молиться за те, «щоб ми, пізнавши істину, були гідними її та в подвигах праведне життя вели і заповіді берегли, щоб вічне спасіння прийняти.» На відміну від Мирної ектенії, у якій ми молимося за весь світ, у Сугубій поіменно поминаємо вірних, додаємо особливі прохання зібраної спільноти у відповідь на почуте Боже Слово й просимо Божої допомоги в різних обставинах життя вірних.

У Ектенії за оглашених вірні моляться за тих, хто готується до Хрещення, щоб Господь «просвітив їх словом істини» і «прилічив їх до вибраного свого стада.» Оглашених допускали до трапези Слова для осягнення духовної зрілості й зцілення духовних недуг. Перед початком Євхаристійної трапези їх відпускали. Залишалися «тільки вірні», які зібралися для того, щоб кормитися поживою вічного життя – тілом і кров'ю Господа нашого Ісуса Христа.

The Liturgy of the Word (Liturgy of the Catechumens) Hearing the Word of God, Responding to It, and Prayer

The Word of God shines in our hearts “the pure light of ... Divine knowledge,” as the Prayer before the Gospel teaches us. To hear the Word of God means “to understand the message of [the] Gospel” in order to accept it as “blessed commandments that we may subdue all carnal desires and follow a spiritual way of life, thinking and doing all that pleases” God. We incline our heads during the reading of the Gospel as a sign of reverent listening and acceptance of the Word of God. In the homily, the priest proclaims the Good News about the mighty deeds of God, calls us to embody the Word we hear: “[He] instructs and exhorts [us] to the imitation of these good things.” The faithful listen to the Word of God, which the Lord addresses to them through the reading of the Epistle and Gospel, and through the homily. They receive the Word of God into their hearts as a seed that should bring forth good fruit in their lives. Receiving in this way communion in Christ the Word, they become its bearers and heralds.

In the Insistent Litany, the Church prays “that we may be accounted worthy, having learned the truth, by our deeds also to be found good citizens and guardians of what is commanded, so that we may be saved with eternal salvation.” Whereas in the Litany of Peace at the beginning of the Liturgy we prayed for the whole world, in the Insistent Litany we mention the faithful by name, we add the special petitions of the assembly in response to the received Word of God, and we entreat God’s help for the different circumstances in the lives of the faithful.

In the Litany for the Catechumens, the faithful pray for those preparing for Baptism. They pray that the Lord would “teach them by the word of truth” and (during the second half of Lent) that the Lord “number them among [his] chosen flock.” The catechumens were admitted to the Banquet of the Word in order to help them achieve spiritual maturity and heal spiritual illnesses. Before the beginning of the Banquet of the Eucharist, however, they were dismissed. “Only the faithful” (the baptized) remained, those who had gathered to be nourished by the food of eternal life—the Body and Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ.
